

Many Activities Offered To Youth During Winter

Believing that the winter months offer special problems to parents of restless young people, the ADVOCATE lists below some of the avenues through which the youth of Arlington may find recreation and occupation.

The Boys' Club with clubhouse at 60 Pond lane, which includes a good gymnasium, 3 game rooms, a reading room, 3 craft rooms, 4 bowling alleys, an outdoor hot-topped play area, kitchen and dining room, offers a program of recreation, athletics and craft classes for boys from 8 to 21 years old, from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 10 p.m., and all day Saturday.

Under the sponsorship of the A.Y.A., which two years ago won national recognition for outstanding youth activity, the well-known "Rec" dances for high school students are held Friday nights at the Town Hall.

Also on Friday evenings under A.Y.A. supervision is the Rifle Club which meets at the rifle range in the police station, open to all teen age boys and girls.

The A.Y.A. Junior Hockey Club offers boys of the town opportunity for competition on ice. The Rainbow Club for girls 13-20 years old meets the first and third Friday evenings of every month with Mrs. Henry Castellon as adviser.

DIMES CAMPAIGN IS LAUNCHED

An intensive campaign to raise clinic care in 1951 with eleven of Arlington's share of the 1952 them being classified as "new" March of Dimes got underway this week under the vigorous leadership of Don Bresnan, chairman, with the opening of headquarters at 14 Medford st.

The local organization has formed committees to conduct the most intensive campaign ever put on in Arlington, according to Chairman Bresnan, with the avowed objective of putting Arlington's fight against Polio on a "pay as you go" basis after four successive years in which expenditures of funds for Arlington victims exceeded the money collected in this community.

Coin containers will be in every store. March of Dime cards will be mailed to over 11,000 families. Posters and hospital display material will be put in store windows including the famous iron lung and rocking bed.

An appeal has gone out for volunteers to give one hour of their time at the headquarters from 2 to 9 p.m., particularly on Saturday and Sunday, folding letters. The telephone number is AR 5-8300.

Don Bresnan stated this week that twenty-nine local residents (including twenty-three children) were provided with hospital and

MISSING GIRL BROUGHT HOME

A local girl was brought back home from New Jersey by her brother-in-law on Tuesday this week.

Reported missing late Saturday night by her sister, Mrs. Ann Corbett, was Joan Hillard, 17, who resides with the Corbotts at 37 Allen st. Mrs. Corbett told police she thought the girl might have gone to Ossipee, N. H., with a Cambridge girl.

On Sunday night at about 10 p.m. Mrs. Corbett reported to local police that she had just received a call from her sister who said she was staying at a hotel in Red Bank, N. J. Mrs. Corbett asked local police to check the report and, if possible, find the girl and hold her.

It was not until Monday afternoon that the girl was found. Police in Linden, N. J. reported at 4:25 p.m. that they had the Hillard girl.

Three newly formed 4-H clubs broaden the possibilities in the town. Information may be obtained from Mrs. Charles O. Wilcox.

The girls' and boys' athletic departments of the junior and senior high schools offer a program of after-school activities.

The Park Department maintains skating areas throughout the town whenever weather permits.

Fame In A Name

Russell T. Hamlet, president of the Arlington Friends of the Drama, has received an interesting letter from a former member, Annabel (Jenks) Gerken, now in San Diego, California.

The letter:

Dear Russell,

I thought you might be interested in the fact that the fame of the Arlington Friends of the Drama has reached as far as California. I spied this little item in the San Diego Union this morning.

It's been four years almost since I married and left Arlington but I still read all about your activities in the Arlington Advocate.

Sincerely yours,

Annabel (Jenks) Gerken

The clipping referred to was a U.P. dispatch headlined "Hamlet In Right Spot" which said:

"ARLINGTON, Mass. (UP)—The Arlington Friends of the Drama, an amateur theatrical group, is headed by Russell T. Hamlet."

You and the members of your department are to be commended for the effective and superior manner in which you conduct your services and duties. It is indeed gratifying to know that we have in Arlington, an efficient and dependable police department, as was demonstrated by that organization when I was in need of help last fall.

Very truly yours,

S/ Alfred J. Thibeault

P.S. I am enclosing a check in the amount of $25.00 for your Junior Police Organization and another check of a similar amount to be used at your discretion for police relief or any other purpose which you feel will be of benefit to the Police Department.

chosen by the Rev. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons, pastor of St. Jerome's Church and senior pastor of Arlington Catholic Churches.

STUDENTS JOIN IN TOWN ELECTIONS

Several months ago a prominent town official offered to us a suggestion which, we believe, has merit. The idea is to enlist the school system in the problem of greater interest in town elections. By the plan, candidates would actually campaign before the older students with speeches and distribution of printed material. The students would conduct their own election on Election Day with ballot boxes and full complement of wardens and counters. The results, although having no effect on the official count, would be announced the next day.

Quite possibly this activity should be limited to seniors. The Student Council could meet and appoint a Clerk, Registrars, election official, a police chief with staff. An added feature might be the actual registration of student voters with certain qualifications decided upon.

As an educational project the plan would have considerable value. Few people know the actual processes involved in an election. It would give the educators an opportunity to issue material defining the breadth as well as the limitations of each town official.

As a project to create interest, the plan would play an important role. Events that take place during the day at school are frequent topics of conversation around the home dinner table. Through the plan, the forthcoming election would become an interesting subject of discussion into which parents would be drawn.

Our forefathers laid down a law that a voter must be twenty-one in order to insure a vote of mature mind. It is a good law in all probability yet it does make the privilege of voting very remote in the mind of the youth. Twenty-one to a sixteen-year-old is a hundred years away.

Through the proposal the youth would feel the full impact that his responsibilities as a citizen are close at hand.

TODAY is the anniversary of the establishment of Postal Banks in 1911.

Show A-Bomb Film Tues. At Hardy PTA Meeting

The Hardy Parent Teachers' Association will present the much discussed film, "You Can Beat The A-Bomb" at its next regular meeting Tuesday night in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock.

This film, presented through the cooperation of the Massachusetts Civil Defense Committee, has been lauded by all who have seen it, as giving encouragement and a feeling of security. Its thesis is that with the proper education and preparation it is possible to survive atomic attack and its after effects. It gives a visual demonstration of how to take care of one's self and one's family.

Believing that parents and teachers have in their care our greatest national treasure, the Hardy Association has postponed its regular scheduled program in order to show this film as a public service. The meeting is open to all.

Mr. Daniel J. McFadden, local defense director, has been invited to attend and will be prepared to answer questions on a local basis.
Mrs. Samuel R. Carlisle will preside with Mrs. Robert E. Uek presenting the program. Mrs. Walter Schuhmacher will be in charge of the social hour.

That Man About Town

By MAT

We are glad that the head of the League of Women Voters wrote us last week. We had previously mentioned that this organization "backs" candidates of the fair sex for Town Meeting Members. This is not so according to President Maude D. Thompson of the League. She wrote that the League "encourages" any interested member.

We are not going to split hairs over the distinction but would like to quote from the bulletin from whence we picked up our information. It was the December bulletin to members. It read, in part, "Let's not spend all our time discussing our government and miss an opportunity to really do something about it ourselves. Why not file your application for Town Meeting Member?"

Also in the bulletin was a complete list of the number of Town Member vacancies up for election next March, including one, two and three year terms. It totaled 86 vacancies. Putting this together with the above quoted sentences, it sure is "encouragement." We're for it just as we're for the good work the League is doing. Sorry we got crossed up in semantics.

Some of the storekeepers we know in Arlington tell us that business was very good this year and credit the Christmas street lighting for its share. The spirit of the season is most aptly exemplified by this type of promotion. For them, we thank their fellow businessmen and the Town itself for the wherewithal to put it over.

January is the month for candidates to file for local town offices. The editor will keep you posted on the dates as well as the closing of articles for next March's warrant. We will, from time to time, be able to tell you what is going into the warrant (outside the usual budget items) which will affect the 1952 tax people would appreciate it and rate. Suffice it to say, at this time mind the extra walk.

point, that it will rise again. Our long range guess will be a minimum of $2 per $1000.

The penny postal card is now a thing of the past. If you have any left over from 1951, you must affix another penny stamp to get them delivered. A peculiar tax has been set up when you buy them in lots of 50 or more. You must pay 10% more than the cost. Fifty cost $1.00 but you must pay $1.10 and so on. If you buy 49 you can have them for $.98 so the 50th one costs you $.12 and, we'd like to observe, that is how we are going to buy 'em. Business houses, printers and the like are the ones that will get stuck. What will the tax-gatherers think of next?

How many times this week have you written "1951" instead of "1952"?

We spent some time watching traffic at the corner of Pleasant Street and Massachusetts Ave. We herewith offer a possible solution to part of the danger to pedestrians. Why not move the street car stop on the Harvard Square-bound side back up to the street entrance to the Robbins Library? Where the stop now is, scores of riders must board. This in the face of moving traffic which must operate on red and green with an intermittent green arrow pointing toward Belmont. Even on red and yellow (pedestrian light) the interval is too short between this and the time the arrow lights up, for trolley riders to scuttle out to the spot where the street cars stop. Up the avenue where we suggest, the stop, will eliminate congestion far enough back so that autoists would not fear for foot plodders. It would also eliminate trolley March's warrant. We will, from time to time, be able to tell you what is going into the warrant (outside the usual budget items) which will affect the 1952 tax people would appreciate it and rate. Suffice it to say, at this time mind the extra walk.

JENNIE DOW

Mrs. Jennie (Freeman) Dow died in Belmont Dec. 22 after a short period of illness. Funeral services were held in the Storey Chapel, Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Dec. 26.

Born in Somerville, she had lived in Arlington for 44 years, and was a member of the First Baptist Church. Besides her husband, who is employed at the Massachusetts General Hospital, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Helen Decker of Taunton. Funeral services were held Jan. 1 at 2:30 p.m. in the Saville Chapel.

Phil Johnson Resigns As Sachem Executive

The resignation of Phil Johnson, for nine years chief executive of the Sachem Council Boy Scouts and Director of Camp Sachem, was announced this week. Johnson came to the Sachem council in September, 1942, and has directed scouting affairs in the council's nine towns and cities, including Arlington, ever since. At that time the membership totalled 2650 boys and today it is nearly 4,000.

At the mid-winter banquet last week of the Camp Sachem's Honor Society, The Order of the Niki-wigi, the Chief, as Mr. Johnson is recognized at camp, was presented two beautiful gifts from the 185 members, an electric razor and a book of memoirs with messages from many of the "Niks." Johnson, in accepting these gifts said, "one of the few things we find today not 'price-tagged' are friends, true friends. In leaving Sachem, I leave many fine and lasting friendships. Good success to you all."

While Mr. Johnson's plans for transferring are not complete at this time, he expects to locate in Region II.

Richard Schmidt of 29 Dragon, two grandchildren and a per ave, had his sister from New sister, Mrs. Hermine Clouse of York visiting him for the holidays.

TODAY'S Meditation

IN THE BEGINNING, GOD

The evening and the morning were the . . . day. (Genesis 1:5.)
Read I John 1:1-10.

GOD throws much light on this matter of beginnings and endings in the first chapter of Genesis, where it is written, "In the beginning God." Yet, in the same chapter, men have failed to grasp the meaning of God's language. "The evening and the morning were the . . . day." No man ever said that. Men say, "The morning and the evening are the day." Men end day with night; God ends day with light.

A newborn baby is laid in the bosom of a young mother. She exclaims, "Oh, that he could be a babe forever!" That would be deepest tragedy. One day, refusing longer to be a baby, he tumbles himself out of the crib. Is that the evening, the end of babyhood? No. That is the beginning of childhood. That is bigger and better than babyhood.

Soon the child is off to school. Grammar school's end is high school's beginning. High school ends that college may dawn. School ends that life's work may dawn. Earthly life ends that eternity may dawn. Here we grope through shadows. There it is daybreak everywhere. Death is Promotion Day! The evening and the morning are the day.

PRAYER

May we, our Father, begin and end each day with Thee. Help us to look upon the close of each phase of our lives as a beginning of a new and yet better phase. At last may we dwell with Thee eternally. In Christ's name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Each day's end means a new day's beginning.

Postmaster Finn Reports Processing 3,598,570 Pieces Christmas Mail Here

If you think you were busy in the days before Christmas consider the problems that faced acting postmaster Joseph P. W. Finn at the Arlington post office. Now that the rush is over and he has time to count up, he finds that in the period from Dec. 14 to Dec. 24, from a special office set up in the basement of the post office, 1,272,895 letters were postmarked, sorted and dispatched.

Thirty-nine percent of this mail was for delivery in Arlington.

In past years all letters mailed in Arlington were canceled and distributed from the Somerville Post Office, but this year all the Arlington mail, along with that of Lexington, was handled here in quarters formerly occupied by the ration board.

The letters from all other post offices throughout the country received here by auto service amounted to 2,325,675.

Normally, the Arlington post office has a personnel of 76 employees for the handling and delivery of mail. During the Christmas period, 350 temporary employees were added to assist the regulars. They worked on shifts around the clock 24 hours a day. To distribute all the mail in time for Christmas, Finn arranged for a Sunday morning delivery by temporary carriers, and he estimates approximately 75,000 letters were delivered that morning.

One way or another, Finn reports, when the last mail went home Christmas eve, all the mail received up to that time had been delivered.

A symposium, "Aids to the Social Growth of Our Children", is announced by Mrs. Paul F. Burke, chairman of the program committee, for the Jan. 10 meeting of the Bishop School P.T.A.

Panel speakers familiar with conditions and problems in Arlington will speak and answer questions on the following subjects: fine arts—L. Hassler Elzinga; Mrs. John Cox; Mrs. Raymond McKeever; scouting—Malcolm Masters and Mrs. Milton H. Anderson; library—Miss Elizabeth Phelan.

In addition to the chairman, members of the program committee include Mrs. Chester G. Brown, Mrs. Harold E. Magnuson, Mrs. Albert E. Waldstein, Mrs. John A. Beckett, and Dr. Mathew A. Derow.

An "open house" in the school rooms will precede the meeting.

Good Year Reported at First Parish Meeting

At the annual meeting of The First Parish (Unitarian) church held recently, glowing reports were read from all departments of the church work. Philip H. Burt acted as moderator. Richard W. Bennett reported a healthy balance in the church treasury. Merwin A. Ashley spoke of the year's progress and of the parish plans for the future which include the exterior painting of the church in the spring.

Rev. John Nicol Mark presented twenty-eight names for membership. These new members received the right hand of fellowship on Founder's Sunday, December 30.

Von M. Weston reported the Church School was at its highest enrollment and attendance.

Previous to the meeting an enjoyable buffet supper was served by the members of the Evening Alliance.

Dispatch from the Continent

"Sheep Sit In Soft Living-Room Chairs"

Lapland (By William B. Dillingham) —They say that woman's place is in the home. A Lapp, however, would not always agree to such a broad statement—least of all on a cold day when he believes that it is man's place to be in the home and woman's out collecting firewood.

But in all fairness and for various reasons, the Lapp occasionally permits his wife to exercise her domestic rights (and I do mean "exercise") while he finds a chore outside—probably when there are piles of dirty dishes to be washed and blackberries to be picked on a sunny day.

On the question of "what and who" should be in the home, many a farming Lapp feels too attached to his sheep, cows and chickens to let them sleep alone at night. There is just as liable to be a sheep sitting in the soft livingroom chair as the old Lapp master, himself. Here is living democracy, not limited to mere humans as are some ancient cultures, but encompassing the animal kingdom as well.

This is just a light sketch of the more "extreme" domesticated Lapp—entirely different from the Arctic nomad who feels frankly ashamed to be identified with this "decadent" home-loving people.

I was able to visit the house of a very special domesticated Lapp and get a frank first hand view of "life in the raw". He lived with his family of eighteen on a farm out in the wilderness. I understood from Mr. Rage Dahl, the Norwegian police chief who guided me up there, that only about a handful of non-Lapps have ever been in the region. By the way this isolated family acted when I got there, I was sure he was telling the truth.

At first approach to the cabin, not a single one of the eighteen Lapps appeared. They were hidden away peeking out of obscure places in the cabin. We could hear rustling inside so we knocked, banged, yelled and even tried luring them out with a long period of silence. Finally the family rallied the courage to send out an eight year old boy to answer the door and invite us inside.

Although the practice of living with one's farm animals is certainly not typical of the domesticated Lapps, this family acted as if it were.

The cabin had an odor that could have seasoned Limburger cheese. One elderly woman was sitting at the table spreading butter on a piece of bread with her thumb while a boy of about fifteen returned to his work of hollowing out a log—which I discovered was to be Grandfather's coffin when he dies!

My police chief friends told the Lapps that I was a foreigner from the United States. They had heard of America, they said, and that it was a very rich land of many reindeer where one could even catch them on the street. (This reminded me of home).

During our conversation I noticed that some of the younger children were adopting the habits of the animals, and right on the living room floor, besides.

Thanks For Recognition

We are indebted to Carl G. Fowler, 20 Devereaux st., for sending us the following quotation from an editorial which he authored in the trade journal "The Commercial Bulletin":

"While we live, we must hope. In 1876, 75 years ago, the Arlington Advocate had a 'Merry Christmas' comment that we hereby offer for a New Year's message of encouragement:

"If there ever was a time when we needed the genial influence of a holiday time, it is now, and it is a cheering sign that in spite of all the depressing influences that surround us, the disposition to make the most of the holidays is so general."

Plan New Cub Pack

Troop Nine of East Arlington which meets at the Church of Our Saviour on Marathon st. is forming a new Scout Training group of boys over 10 years, 6 months and under 12 years of age. Twenty-five boys will be accepted for this group which will meet from 5:00 to 6:00 p.m. on Mondays.

The organization meeting will be on Monday, Jan. 7 at 5:00 p.m. at the Church of Our Saviour gymnasium.

Cub scouting hasn't been available for East Arlington boys of late years and interested boys who missed Cub Scouting are especially invited to join Troop Nine. Troop Nine owns a Quonset Camp which is used all year.

Edward D. Buckley, member of the Park Commissioners, announced his candidacy for reelection this week.

Buckley will have completed two three-year terms in March, plus two years as an appointee—a total of eight years.

Speaker of the evening will be Lieut. Col. Raymond V. Fridrich, Inspector-Instructor of the newly formed 2nd Infantry battalion of the Marine Corps Reserve with headquarters in the Navy Building, Boston. He has just returned from Korea where he participated in the Inchon landing, the seizure of Seoul, and the Chosin Reservoir campaign.

These campaigns were known as Operations Killer and Ripper, and this is the title of Col. Fridrich's talk.

Captain P. Seward Burrowes, will operate the film.

CAMERA TOPICS

By T. T. Holden

ACTION SHOTS WITH SLOW SHUTTERS

If action pictures are your specialty, there's no need to tuck that camera away and wait for the summer sports season. The traditional winter activities such as skating, sledding or skiing offer some fine opportunities for picturesque action shots.

Perhaps you are one of those camera owners who has often tried to get a picture of Junior trying out his new skates or sled, but just aren't lucky enough to own a camera with a fast shutter to stop the action. Here's news—you can take those pictures if you utilize a few simple photographic tricks.

When you shoot a moving subject coming directly toward or away from you, the shutter speed required to stop the action is only about 1/4 of the shutter speed required to stop him if he were moving in a line at right angles to the lens. By taking pictures from this angle, even a shutter speed of 1/100 is sufficient for stopping many kinds of action. Always remember, too, that the farther a subject is from the camera, the less shutter speed it takes to stop his motion, so unless you have a fast shutter, stay at distances of 25 feet or more.

Another trick in stopping motion is "panning"—moving the camera along with the subject as you snap the shutter. Pictures made in this way will have a blurred background which is often desirable for getting the feeling of speed in the picture. In many action shots, a little blurred movement is an asset in bringing out the action quality of the picture.

Of course, some action pictures just can't be taken with slow shutter cameras because the speed of the subject is too fast. At any rate, it would be worthwhile for you to experiment to see what your camera can do.

Deignan - Kane

The marriage of Miss Bernice Claire Kane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Kane of 49 Tanager st., to James Richard Deignan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Deignan of 238 Park st., took place Dec. 15.

The ceremony at St. James Church was performed by the Rev. Charles F. McCarthy, with the bride given in marriage by her father. Miss Phyllis Kane served her sister as maid of honor in an ice blue satin gown. Similar gowns of coral satin were worn by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Charles Adams and Miss Marjorie A. O'Connell.

The bridal gown was of white satin and chantilly lace with a finger-tip illusion veil fashioned to a cap of lace. Kenneth Deignan attended his brother as best man and Charles Adams and Walter Kane, were ushers.

Following a wedding trip to New York City the couple are making their home in Arlington while the bridegroom is serving in the Coast Guard. Both are graduates of Arlington High school.

WOMAN'S CLUB HEARS TRAVEL TALK

The Arlington Woman's Club chairman of motion pictures, presented Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stock-December 27 in the Town Hall with Mrs. Milton Washburn presiding.

Mrs. Norman Griffin, chairman of the rummage sale to be held for the benefit of the hospital the last of January, urged members to spend a while in their attics during the next few weeks hunting treasures.

Mrs. Elmar Larson, chairman of the music committee, introduced Miss Dorothy Redman, a young Arlington girl as soloist who delighted her audience.

Mrs. Norman Walkinshaw, sented Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stockdale and their dog, Tajmahal, who told of their original experiences in their walk across the country. During the whole talk Tajmahal lay on the stage perfectly at ease, much to the amusement of the audience. After the talk, "Taj" held quite a reception, showing his shoes for those interested.

A most interesting hobby show was presented by the Art committee, including collections of minerals, sands from different localities, stamps, salt and pepper shakers, and many others.

Beds Grand In Ancient Days But Far More Comfortable Now

The pomp of life among the great personalities of ancient days did not provide them with half the comfort of a modern with a good bed and mattress, judging by 301 pages of fascinating facts gathered by Reginald Reynolds and set forth in a new book, "BEDS—With Many Noteworthy Instances of Lying On, Under or About Them" (Doubleday).

The ancient Assyrians had beds of stone, the folk in tropical Mexico beds of sheet iron, and a character named Hellogabalus had one of solid silver, which may not have been any softer than any other metal one but must have conveyed a nice affluent feeling to the user. Mr. Reynolds reports that Louis XIV had 413 beds—thereby emphasizing that he was a king and rich—and the privileged classes of ancient Egypt laid on couches of bronze, alabaster, gold, ivory or inlaid wood, richly cushioned. The poor laid on pallets of palm boughs, with wooden pillows hollowed for their heads.

The earliest American beds were similar to those used in Europe, probably brought by early settlers, or duplicated by them from memory or drawings. Press beds—the first American effort to economize on space, as they were so built as to fold up and lie flat against the wall or in a cupboard—were known in Britain. Today's space-saving beds reaching an ultimate in comfort are the famous Hide-A-Bed, by Simmons, which are dual-purpose pieces in the fullest sense of the word: they provide a handsome couch by day, making a focal point in any well-arranged living room, and at night make (after a 30-second "switch") a luxurious, comfortable double bed.

Forecasts of trends for 1952 indicate a growing consumer interest in mixing furnishings from among groups such as Town and Country Modern, Ranch House Modern, Provincial and Traditional so as to give a note of contrast, but yet to obtain a harmonizing of appearance. Dual-purpose furniture such as the Hide-A-Bed has come of age, in that it now hides its dual use fully in its interior. Building costs can be cut in many cases if the advantage and possibilities of space saving are talked over beforehand, so that unnecessary space can be eliminated from plans. This requires that the size of each piece of furniture be determined, and plans drawn as to where it will be located. In ready-made homes or apartments, Hide-A-Bed sizes are available to fit the existing space, and this is where dual-use comes in handiest.

LIGHTING YOUR TELEVISION ROOM

By JAN REYNOLDS

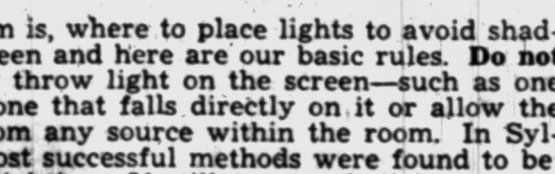

Sylvania Electric Home Lighting Consultant

ENJOYING TELEVISION TO THE FULLEST, involves more than choosing the set, placing it in the room and drawing up a chair. Placing the set, decorating scheme and most of all well planned lights are important.

OFTEN A WEEK OR MORE is spent rearranging lights, shoving furniture and moving the set, before satisfaction is achieved—while with a little planning, this can be prevented and a topsy-turvy room avoided. A sketch of the room plan can save time and strength and frequently, moving a chair or table can solve the problem. The most desirable spot for the set is in a corner. This minimizes its bulk and eliminates chair shifting at program time. In any event, youngsters should never sit closer than four feet from the screen and adults at least six feet away to prevent eye-strain.

LIGHTING is of major importance since it is generally recognized that total darkness causes eye fatigue due to severe contrast of bright screen and dark background. The problem is, where to place lights to avoid shadows and glare on the screen and hence on our basic rules. Do not place lamps so that they throw light on the screen—such as one in a direct line with it, one that falls directly on it or allow the screen to reflect light from any source within the room. In Sylvania tests two of the most successful methods were found to be: 1. Use window valance lighting. If still too much light, two of the concealed fixtures may be turned off, leaving the middle units to illuminate blind or shade. Fluorescent lamps also may be concealed behind valance boards in bookcases opposite the window, affording low level illumination. 2. Mount lamps on the back of table or console sets. This throws the light upon the back wall. Incandescent bulb, lumiline lamp or miniature 8-watt Sylvania fluorescent lamp may be used. If table or floor lamps must be used, turn the bulbs down to the same wattage and use opaque shades to eliminate glare or use lights from another room. INDIVIDUAL TASTE, of course, must be considered in both lighting and decorating but whatever your choice, take care to eliminate reflected or direct light on the screen as well as severe contrast of brightness. Avoid large figured wall paper and draperies near the set. The more simple the surroundings the less distraction. You'll be protecting those precious eyes of yours and your families as well as gaining more satisfaction in your TV-viewing. (ANS Features)

YOUR BOUFFANT LOOK CAN GO FLAT IF PETTICOATS WILT IN CLEANING

It is one thing to get into the swing of the full skirted silhouette—it is another thing to stay in the swing. Your bouffant look can go as flat as a pancake if your petticoat stiffening is not permanent!

The National Institute of Cleaning and Dyeing has found that fabrics that "go limp" in cleaning are: cotton tarlatans, cambric, crinoline, buckram, and crinoline with a non-permanent finish.

Your cleaner can bring back the crispness by using a stiffening agent dissolved in water. The question is, will the other fabrics combined in the petticoat withstand this water treatment? Unfortunately, many of them are dyed with colors that run in water.

Maybe your petticoat is made of a new fabric, "Crinex", which is crinoline laminated with a non-woven fabric called "Mass-lin". Crinex has been designed to give comfort in wear and to prevent snagging your hose on stiff crinoline. It can be dry-cleaned, but water removes the Masslin, leaving the crinoline limp.

Or perhaps your petticoat is made of rayon net that has been stiffened either with a resin or starch and gum arabic. The resin treated fabric can be handled, with care, in drycleaning, but pressing is a problem. The heat of the iron at the rayon setting causes the resin to become plastic and sticky.

If you press a net petticoat yourself, be sure to clean the bottom of your iron before you press another garment!

The rayon net that contains starch and gum arabic loses some of its stiffness in drycleaning, and all of it in wetcleaning. When a stiff net is used as an interlining, it may imprint on the outer fabric when you press the garment. Your drycleaner has the steam-air equipment that avoids this imprinting.

Next time you buy petticoats, ask about the permanence of stiffening—and let your cleaner help preserve their appearance.

KING'S DAUGHTERS

The Good Samaritan Circle of King's Daughters met at the home of Elizabeth Woods in Lincoln, Mass.

Dolls were dressed to be given away at Christmas. Mrs. Pauline Sanders told of the help that had been given to family from Germany and what their need is.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

So this is HOUSEKEEPING

Through some quirk of reasoning, most veterans at the art of homemaking unconsciously consider brides as idiotic little butterflies who have emerged mysteriously from some cocoon without a practical thought in their heads.

When I discovered that my next-door neighbor seriously thought I didn't know a darned needle from an egg souffle I determined to strike a blow for bridehood with a practical idea that would bowl her over. My big chance finally came when she complained that her youngest daughter flatly and resolutely refused to wear any more hand-me-down clothes that every one had seen on her sister years before. I charged in with the simplest of all solutions: dye a new wardrobe!

Seeing the gleam in Janet's eye I went into high gear and pointed out that with an all-fabric dye which works on every fabric she could transform coats, dresses, blouses, skirts, slacks, and everything dear to a girl's heart. Janet had a barrage of questions. Luckily, I had carefully read a booklet from the Tintex Home Economics Bureau and was all set with the answers. Colors? Fifty fashion-new shades from which to choose. When to use color remover before re-dyeing? When fabric is unevenly faded, spotted, or stained; when changing from a dark to a lighter color; when an entirely new or different color is desired.

By that time Janet had the "dye bug" and came up with her own idea which I'll file away for future reference . . . just in case. She thought of tinting old sheets to make into colorful, inexpensive costumes for school plays or for all the masquerade parties that crop up from Halloween to New Year's!

I've noticed two things since my big confab with Janet. After a flurry of home-dyeing, her girls and her young son have pridefully blossomed forth with seemingly new, fresh, and colorful outfits. I have been elevated to a new status in her mind somewhere in the region of "You might turn out to be a homemaker one of these days at that!"
